Prof. C. Phillips

lightly or wickedly pursue such a course as that is put to me and my colleagues by W. Kerrison. Among other criticisms in-ence so infallibly by W. Kerrison is one that your honorable body has been so careless as herto order to have made Professors of the French language and literature out of butchers or facing masters. This may have been a misfortune, but many of us think that it is not received by having them succeed to be watchmakers. There is something in being "to the manner born."

Our plans are practices here may be such as surprise all who do not know us. But one thing may be said that assured by our experience Board of Trustees they have in twenty-years given us access to the heads and hearts of 395 of our young fellow citizens instead of 89. We rejoice sir to learn that the pain of your body have been mitigated and that you may for years to come help us with your wise counsels and judicious approval - with high
