which was studying Calculus into Astronomy and the sophisticate class (which was studying Analysis) into Philosophy. The suggestion is that there's Mathematics (which is the hardest published) will be struck out of the College course. The students have been trying to do this for the last two years. However, I will be here in a little over three weeks. It is most time to send me money to come home with. With hopes of seeing you all soon...

Your affectionate son,

William H. Cope.
