

The Battle Ground Celebration.

Thousands of people, able and interesting speeches, acres of vehicles, tons of eatables, good fellowship, hot weather and a glorious rain were the features of the Guilford Battle Ground celebration yesterday. The band, the military company, one of the magnificent monuments being erected there by the Federal government and other attractions aided in interesting the people until the rain drove them to cover. The Southern Railway alone carried three thousand people to the Battle Ground, not counting the excursions from various points, while fully that number went by private conveyance. The architectural splendor and stateliness of the Davidson monument repaid everyone for the trip. The Nash monument is well under way, and the formal unveiling of these will be an event of national interest.
