Papers relative to the Establishment of
The North Carolina University Library
Magazine

October 3rd 1833

The committee appointed at a late meeting of the Senate Assembly to inquire into the expediency and practicability of establishing anliterary magazine in this place, to be conducted by the college and to submit a plan for the same, having held a conference with Geo. Strane and Wm. Young, Esq., of Raleigh and having maturely and deliberately considered the subject have been to submit the following report.

In the opinion of the committee, that a journal to be called the North Carolina University Magazine, should be issued monthly, a volume on, or near the first day of each month, under the immediate superintendence of the President, should be committed to an Editorial Corps of 14 (three from each society) which Corps shall be elected at the end of each junior year, by the class of which they may be members, and shall, at the beginning of the following session, assume the duties and responsibilities, and be vested with all the authority which usually belongs to an Editorial Department.

The committee would further suggest that this meeting proceed forthwith to the election of an Editorial Corps, who shall be empowered to make all further arrangements, with regard to the future career of the Periodicals.
