Our duty is to find him a successor in January next if possible, because very more work employing in so important a trust will be done long or other wap for the year, and our difficulties this would probably be aggravated by wanting until July. I have there fore written to Mr. Gullen, of whom I suppose you have already heard. Mr.
Hay and all the February since I have seen, who are acquainted with Mr. Gullen Hei, speak highly of his learning and good sense, and I am informed he is attached to a studious academic life, and would probably remain long work here. This is a great object—It is a melancholy thing to have these different lives coming upon us every year.
