It has been also suggested that the accommodations proposed might be distributed between two buildings, one to be on the east side of the east building, and the other on the west side of the west building, and both to front north.

As to the cost of these improvements, it is most likely that they will amount to $50,000, and one reason for our refraining from deciding as to their respective merits is our ignorance as to the amount that the Trustees can expect at present for such purposes. The plan for a building for Recreation and Society rooms is liable to the objections that it diminishes rather more room than we are ever likely to need; that we will find difficulty in rendering the present Society rooms useful for any other than their present purpose, and its architectural merits are not of a high order. To the plan for a T building some of these objections are also applicable, and besides, it is doubtful whether the Chapel can secure enough light for the chapel of such a room.

Another plan is to lengthen the east and west building so as to give more space to the Society rooms in the east. These rooms are now too small, and the access to them is
