...something to influence the conduct or constrain the ambition of your younger fellow members. A whole edifice before us; it is part of this magnificent scene, and it may be that some of its noble columns will fall, for they are but admitted by all. The honor which you have thought fit to confer on me, I shall always remember with gratitude, but one hope for you and the distance in my endeavor to perform my duties with fidelity as well as impartiality.