and in regard of the principles of government as stated — We, therefore, engage and solemnly promise that we will observe order, regularity and subordination in the station we now occupy. That while we continue students at this University, we will endeavor by every means in our power to promote the welfare, ensure the tranquility and establish the respectability of the University; and, as the most probable means to attain these valuable objects, we will be subservient to the rules and regulations of the College ourselves: and will discourage and discourage any contrary conduct; should such be in any evidence, and that we will urge our claim to prevent and avoid any attempt, in disorder, or which may be made to excite visions, or disorderly conduct. We promise to support our Tutor and Professors in the exercise of their respective duties. We will respect their authority. And in all cases of future complaint or dissatisfaction, when we consider them well founded, we will endeavor to have the same redressed and removed by a fair representation of respectful application, to the board of Trustees of the University, who alone have the right of judging and acting therein, on the qualifications and conduct of the Officers of the University.

Thos J. Amis
George Thornton
Rhett Pearson