32. "The evil could be easily checked. We propose ordinances which, if fully enforced, would remove all obstacles."

A meeting was called during the last vacation, and a committee appointed to report what new regulations should be adopted "to promote order and decorum of manners in the Institution." (Faculty Annual, page 36).

I named the addition to the Committee of Master Charles Phillips, Hubbard, and Shipps, as each of these gentlemen follows a different mode of enforcing the College discipline. Uniformity of action being in my opinion the great desideratum in such matters. They reported that no new rules, but that those while we already profess should be thoroughly enforced. The behavior of the students in the chapel during mass, "sandinals, the Committee also reported that they should be seriously warned in regard to their conduct in places of public worship. The students fancied that we were in covert, and the voice subdued at me. Had the same unanimity of action prevailed in reference to the Recitation rooms, I would not be today, before you as a petitioner for redress, and notice students or professors, written Dr. Dr. of Laws no Dr. of Divinity would have had the long sought opportunity to heap upon me imperations and insults which I can never forget!!!

Lame, Gunther,

Your obedient servant,
