If our fathers and in the midst of the struggle if come it must, let the oath of each, and every one be Independence in life if possible, If not, independence in death.

Chapel Hill March 1857.